

ANNUAL MEETING AT BROWNSTOWN

Big Attendance at Services of Christian Churches of Jackson County Sunday.

R. R. KEACH NAMED PRESIDENT

Daniel Empson Honored by Association With Life Presidency—Meeting in Honeytown in 1920.

R. R. Keach, of this city, was elected president of the Jackson County Association of Christian churches at the annual meeting which was held at the Christian church in Brownstown Sunday. Daniel Empson, of Grassy Fork township, who has been president of the association for nearly twenty years, was honored by the association with a life presidency. Mr. Empson has been very faithful in the performance of his duties and the association took this means to acknowledge his earnest services. W. M. Isaacs, of Hamilton township, was re-elected vice-president; J. B. Cross, Brownstown, superintendent of Sunday Schools; the Rev. C. V. Weddell, Medora, Medora, secretary of educational work.

The meeting opened with a Sunday School service at 9:30 o'clock, E. B. Ball, of Brownstown, serving as superintendent. The Rev. R. T. Gwynn, of Indianapolis, delivered a strong sermon at the morning church service. At noon a basket dinner was served in the church yard.

The afternoon service was well attended. The principal address was delivered by the Rev. W. E. Carroll, pastor of the Central Christian church, this city. Mrs. O. H. Greist, of the Christian Woman's Board of Missions was present and gave an interesting talk relative to the work that is being accomplished by that department. The election of officers followed the afternoon religious service.

Every church in the county was represented by delegates and the attendance was very satisfactory. The county meeting is conducted annually in an effort to bring the Christian churches of the county closer together and to effect greater unity in the endeavors of the various congregations. There are more Christian churches in this county than of any other denomination.

Honeytown was selected as the meeting place next summer.

SPECIAL SERVICE HELD AT CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH

Methodist Congregation Joins With Members in Reopening Church After Extensive Repairs.

The first services to be held in the St. Paul Congregational church since the auditorium has been repaired and redecored were conducted Sunday and were largely attended. The First Methodist congregation joined with the St. Paul congregation in a union service at night, the address being given by the Rev. Charles W. Whitman, pastor of the First M. E. church, who spoke on "Jesus and His Message for Modern Life." The program of Jesus, he said, is especially adapted to meet the physical, mental, social and spiritual needs of the times. He dwelt on the fact that if the message of Jesus were properly interpreted social reconstruction could be effected along such lines of understanding that would eliminate trouble between capital and labor and would result in the establishment of a Brotherhood of Man. Everett Naftzger, who is visiting the Rev. and Mrs. Whitman, sang a beautiful solo at the St. Paul evening service.

The improvements which have been made at the St. Paul church greatly add to the appearance of the auditorium. The room has been redecored and otherwise improved. Extensive repairs have been made and the members of the congregation are justly proud of the enhanced appearance of their house of worship.

Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Robertson, of Tacoma, Washington, are here to spend several days the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Jerrell. Mr. Robertson plans to witness some of the world's series baseball games at Cincinnati before returning home.

A number of important matters were presented for discussion among which were: organization of the board, fifth Sunday meetings which were conducted successfully the last year, plan for simultaneous meetings in all churches in the association in November, October drive for Baptist Observer, church apportionments, associational field worker and plans for completing the year's apportionment before October 1.

About twenty-five were in attendance at the meeting.

Lunch was served to the delegates at the church at noon.

FAREWELL SERMON IS GIVEN SUNDAY MORNING

The Rev. William Weiler Closes Successful Pastorate at the Trinity M. E. Church.

The last service of the conference year was held Sunday at the Trinity Methodist Episcopal church and the Rev. William Weiler, who becomes the pastor of the Grace Street M. E. church, in Cincinnati, delivered his farewell sermon. He will be succeeded here by the Rev. J. R. Fishbach, former pastor of the Cincinnati church to which Mr. Weiler has gone.

Mr. Weiler's services to the Trinity church have been of inestimable value. He has launched the new building campaign during his pastorate and has accomplished many other enterprises of substantial worth. He and the members of his family have endeared themselves to the members of the congregation who wish them success in their new field. Mr. Weiler and family left today for Cincinnati. Mr. Fishbach is expected here about the middle of the week.

BEAUTIFUL SERVICE HELD AT PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH

Memorial Window, "The Good Shepherd," Formally Dedicated in Impressive Manner Sunday.

A beautiful service was conducted at the First Presbyterian church Sunday morning in connection with the formal dedication of the new window in the north wall of the auditorium. The window of art glass is entitled "The Good Shepherd," and is artistic and attractive. The donors are Mrs. Margaret Groub, the Andrews family, Mrs. Emma Masters, Mrs. Ruth Cone Nichols, Mrs. Frank Bush and Mrs. John Kessler.

The Rev. J. H. Moore, pastor of the congregation, delivered a forceful sermon, using as his subject, "The Good Shepherd." Special music was arranged for the program.

The window in the south wall of the auditorium will be dedicated next Sunday with similar services. The windows add much to the beauty of the newly redecored interior of the room.

CHINESE STUDENT WILL SPEAK HERE TONIGHT

C. C. Chen Will Give Address at Special Service at the First Baptist Church.

C. C. Chen, a Chinese student, who was scheduled to speak at the First Baptist church yesterday, was unable to reach Seymour until noon today. Immediately upon his arrival here arrangements were made for a special service at the church at 7:45 o'clock tonight at which Mr. Chen will give an address. His talk promises to be full of interest and a large audience is desired.

Mr. Chen is a graduate of Brown University and has had postgraduate work at Yale. His presence at the First Baptist church is of special interest to the congregation who assisted him for three years while he was a student. He is now returning to China to engage in missionary work.

CITY MAY ADVANCE TO FOURTH CLASS

Entitled to Higher Classification if Total Property Valuation Exceeds $7,500,000.

CHANGE MAY BE AUTOMATIC

Some Lawyers Construe Statute to Mean That Voters Will Have to Decide Question.

If the total property valuation in Seymour exceeds $7,500,000, and it is confidently expected that it will, this city will be entitled to leave the group of fifth class cities and take a place in the fourth class. The decided increase in the valuation, of course, is due to the new method of appraising property under the recent tax law. There is some difference of opinion as to the manner in which the advance in the classification is effected. Some attorneys are of the opinion that the city automatically goes into the higher class immediately upon the certification by the county auditor of the tax valuation. Other attorneys contend that the auditor's certificate is only evidence that the city is entitled to a higher classification and that the advance step is optional with the voters of the city. The decision, they hold, must be expressed by referendum at a regular or special election. Other cities whose classification may be changed by the operation of the new tax law are confronted with the same question and the attorney general

LODGE CALLS UP PEACE TREATY

For First Time Treaty is Discussed Before Packed Galleries in Open Senate Session.

JONES DEFENDS DOCUMENT

Senator Overman, South Carolina, to Speak in Favor of Ratification of Pact Tomorrow.

By United Press
Washington, September 15—"I call up the treaty of peace with Germany."

With these words Senator Lodge, chairman of the foreign relations committee, today formally opened the discussion in the senate for the peace treaty as reported by the committee.

For the first time in the senate's history a great treaty was considered in open session before thronged galleries, instead of behind closed doors. Immediately after Lodge called up the treaty, the opening gun in the defense of the document that will be made by the democrats was fired by Senator Jones, New Mexico, who spoke for the treaty. Jones has been one of the treaty's most ardent supporters. He will be followed tomorrow by Senator Overman, South Carolina, who is also in favor of ratification.

That the changes in the peace treaty proposed by the foreign relations committee are couched in deceitful terms that are in opposition to the principles of good government, was the declaration of Senator McCumber, North Dakota, republican, who laid a minority report before the senate. McCumber headed his report "views of a minority" and urged that his six reservations stated recently be adopted instead of those inserted by the foreign relations committee. He took exception to the entire attitude of the republican majority report.

TAX COMMISSIONERS OPEN LAST SESSION OF YEAR

Board Has Authority to Lower or Increase Any Levies in Any Taxing Unit in State.

Indianapolis, Ind., Sept. 15—State tax commissioners today began their fourth and last session of the year—a final resort for cases of appeal from unjust assessment.

During this session the board has the power to review reassess or assess originally any property, real or personal, in any taxing unit of the state. The law is not interpreted by the board to mean that it shall go into every complaint against alleged improper assessment, but that before the assessments are closed for payment of taxes next year, there shall be a last resort for rightful emergency cases.

Fred Sims, chairman, pointed out that if the appeals are too numerous, the taxation machinery will be clogged and justice to the persons or corporations really suffering will be delayed.

The first thirty days will be given over strictly to review and final determining of tax levies of all taxing units and also to original fixing of state levies.

Own Your Own Home

The Co-operative Building and Loan Association is ready to help you as it has helped hundreds of other Seymour citizens during the twenty-seven years of its history.

If you can make an initial payment on your home, the Association will loan you two-thirds of the appraised value of the property.

This loan can be repaid in easy weekly payments of twenty-five cents plus the interest on each one hundred dollars borrowed. In a few weeks more than six years the entire loan is repaid and you own your home.

The Building and Loan plan enables you to acquire property which would have been almost impossible otherwise.

Saving money regularly is another feature of the Building and Loan plan. Twenty-five cents per week paid in regularly, draws interest at once and when mature (payments plus interest) amounts to one hundred dollars which you receive at the maturity of the series.

THE MAKING OF A FAMOUS MEDICINE

How Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound
Is Prepared For Woman's Use.

A visit to the laboratory where this successful remedy is made impresses even the casual looker-on with the reliability, accuracy, skill and cleanliness which attends the making of this great medicine for woman's ills.

Over 350,000 pounds of various herbs are used annually and all have to be gathered at the season of the year when their natural juices and medicinal substances are at their best.

The most successful solvents are used to extract the medicinal properties from these herbs.

Every utensil and tank that comes in contact with the medicine is sterilized and as a final precaution in cleanliness the medicine is pasteurized and sealed in sterile bottles.

It is the wonderful combination of roots and herbs, together with the skill and care used in its preparation which has made this famous medicine so successful in the treatment of female ills.

The letters from women who have been restored to health by the use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound which we are continually publishing attest to its virtue.

The Man of The Hour....

You know him,—at least you have heard about him and you will hear more of him.

He's the sort of fellow who as a young man laid out his scheme of life and followed it through.

During the war he put his money into Liberty bonds instead of squandering it with so-called "good fellows."

He saved his money and is a national asset not a public liability. He is a saver of money, of vitality, of self respect.

He has faith in himself and in his country. He banks on the future. So he knows he must bank in the present.

He saves what he can each week. He saves regularly and watches it grow. He cannot help succeeding because he has the habit of saving systematically.

His savings placed in our savings department bring him 3 per cent. interest. His regular checking account has careful attention at our bank. His valuable papers are absolutely safe in our fireproof, burglar-proof vault.

Let us talk over with you our facilities for handling your banking business as well as his.

TWELVE DESIRE TO JOIN CALF CLUB

Every calf club should have two principal objects:

The chief one should be to develop boys and girls by instilling in them a desire to own something of their own, by teaching them the responsibility of ownership and the value of thrift, and by connecting them more closely with the farm and its activities.

The club should also be an important factor in developing the dairy industry by bringing good dairy cattle into the community, by encouraging the membership to adopt one breed of cattle, and by the use of well selected pure bred bulls.

Any boy or girl between the ages of ten and eighteen years at the time the calf club is organized who is responsible and who can be depended upon to feed and properly care for a dairy calf, is eligible for membership. They must have ample facilities for stabling the calf and should have access to the hay mow, the feed bin and if possible the silo. Every club member should also have the unqualified support of their parents.

Some prominent men who can finance and supervise the club must take the initiative. This will be done in Jackson County by the bankers, the Chamber of Commerce, and the Jersey breeders of the Cqw Testing Association, in cooperation with the county agent and the agricultural teacher of the local high school.

Big Production at Princess.

When William Fox presents his epoch-making film version of "Cleopatra," with Theda Bara as the Siren of the Nile at the Princess tomorrow and Wednesday, local amusement seekers will see the most sensational and magnificent photodramatic spectacle ever produced. The passions and pageants of Egypt's vampire queen as portrayed by the screen's foremost interpreter of siren roles aroused the entire theatre and picture-going public of New York, where "Cleopatra" enjoyed a phenomenally successful run on Broadway at the Lyric Theatre. No film drama ever offered the American public has achieved greater popularity than this stupendous production.

William Fox, who is never happier than when making cinema productions of huge proportions, is said to have set a new mark with his picturization of the famous loves of Cleopatra, and it will be some time before there will be found a type into which the savage beauty and personality of Miss Bara fits more perfectly.

"Cleopatra" was photographed in California under the direction of J. Gordon Edwards. It represents the co-ordinated playing of 30,000 people. It took months to make and represent the expenditure of large sums for the erection of Egyptian and Roman cities. It portrays the world's first naval battle—the battle of Actium—for which eighty vessels were especially constructed and later burned to the water's edge. It shows the armies of Egypt and Rome engaged in titanic struggle, depicts the death of Caesar in the Roman Forum, and shows the fascinating Siren of the Nile working her wiles on the Roman conquerors.

DAIRY INDUSTRY OF STATE EXPERIENCES STEADY GROWTH

An increase in the number of cream shipping stations in the state from 153 in 1914 to 1,262 in 1918 is shown in the Fifth Annual Report of the Creamery License Division of the Dairy Department of Purdue University. These figures represent an increase of 725 percent in four years and are indicative of the steady growth of the dairy industry in the state. The growth has been even more marked the past year. During the same time, the amount of creamery butter produced has increased 40 percent. Further proof of the growth of the dairy industry is contained in the fact that during 1914, the territory represented by Crawford, Perry and Harrison counties had only two shipping stations, but during the past year, there were 64 stations in these three counties. The number of testers' licenses has increased 400 percent in the past four years.

All creameries, condenseries, milk plants, etc., in Indiana that are licensed, report to the Creamery License Division each year concerning their output of dairy products. The reports from 1914 to 1918 inclusive show that the total dairy products listed represent 41,000,000 pounds of butter-fat alone. Statistics show a big increase in the volume of all products. The amount of creamery butter products in the past five years has steadily increased to 40 percent since 1914. During 1918 the increase amounted to 5.6 percent or 1,986,050 pounds. For 1918, condensed milk shows an increase of 13,288,914 pounds or 81.6 percent and milk 21,713,768 pounds or 5.6 percent. Licensed plants manufactured 470,597 more gallons of ice cream in 1918 than in 1917.

A total of 8,500,000 pounds of butter-fat is reported to have been shipped out of Indiana in 1918 or about 1,400,000 pounds more than was shipped out in 1917. The butter-fat shipped into the state to some extent offsets the amount shipped out, but only partly so, as only a few of the larger creameries are located near the state's borders, while several large cities located near the boundaries receive large shipments of dairy products from the various plants and farmers.

The accompanying map shows the location and the number of factories and shipping stations over the state. A decided increase in the number of creamery licenses given during 1918-19 have been due to the fact that 524 new shipping stations have been established an increase of 71 percent in the number of licenses issued to shipping stations alone. The number of butter and ice cream plants has been slightly decreased while the number of condenseries remained the same. During the past year licenses have been issued to a total of 1,411 dairy manufacturing plants over the state.

From these statistics it becomes evident that the dairy industry of Indiana has experienced a steady growth. The increase in production of dairy products for 1918 was greater than was expected in view of the fact that stock feeds have been unusually high and labor and necessary equipment have demanded unprecedented prices.

The Creamery License Division serves as a representative for the farmer and for factories which buy milk or cream on the butter-fat basis. While the legal duty of the division is to insure honest and reliable butter-fat tests by enforcing the provisions of the Creamery and Testers' License Law it makes it possible for the producer or manufacturer to know whether or not correct tests have been made. This service is enlarging and is more generally utilized probably, as a result of increased competition on the part of manufacturers with the continued development of the dairy industry. Correct tests are generally given, but it is occasionally found that a tester pays for milk or cream on an incorrect basis. The proper practice in this case is effected by educational means or by precaution. When prosecution is necessary, the violation is reported to the prosecuting attorney whose duty it is to institute proceedings against the person or persons according to the state law.

The license work is under direction of T. H. Broughton of O. E. chief of the division. Prof. O. E. Reed, head of the dairy department, is chief of the examining board which examines cream testers for licenses.

The dairy industry in Jackson county has shown a remarkable growth in the last three years, developing as rapidly here as in any other county of the state. In 1916, there was one ice cream factory and the cream shipping stations in the county. There are now two creameries and twenty shipping stations. Figures of almost equal importance might be quoted for Washington, Jennings, Scott, Bartholomew and Lawrence counties.

WASTE SWAMP LANDS IN AMERICA

There are 102,800,000 acres of uncultivated swamp and wet lands in the United States that can be made exceedingly productive.

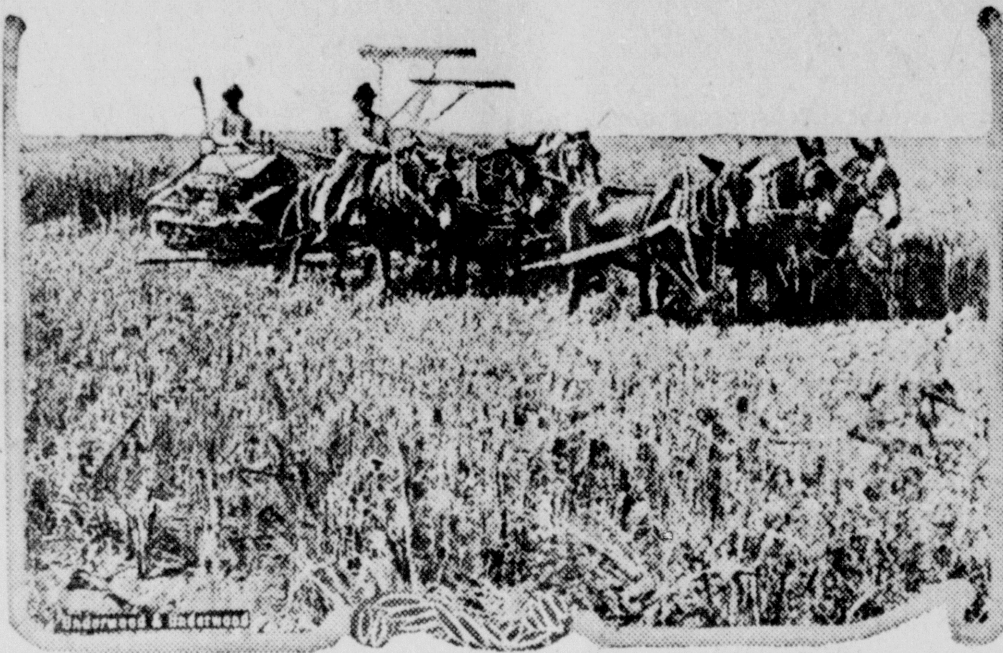

The area is larger than Illinois, Iowa and Indiana combined or three-fourths of France. Information recently was collected by the Department of Agriculture in regards to twenty drainage districts in eastern North Carolina. These districts cover an area of 258,425, of which 48,600 acres were cultivated prior to drainage. Since the lands have been drained, 32,600 acres have been cleared and placed under cultivation, making a total area of 81,200 acres now under the plow in these districts. Of the area placed under cultivation since the lands were drained, 12,000 acres were located in one district of 16,000 acres, where an active selling and development campaign has been conducted by the persons owning the land.

There are more than 300 drainage districts in one county in Iowa, which has spent more than $10,000,000 on drainage improvements. During the twenty years from 1898 to 1917 Michigan spent $18,559,576 for drainage improvements. In North Carolina, Mississippi, Tennessee, Louisiana, Arkansas, and Missouri, state laws have been passed concerning land drainage, and over 7,000,000 acres have been included in drainage districts, where the improvements planned either have been constructed or now are under way. The Little River drainage district in Missouri containing 550,000 acres, which is more than 90 percent completed; the Cypress Creek District in Arkansas, containing 300,000 acres, fully 40 percent completed; the Bogue Phalia District in Bolivar County Mississippi, containing 150,000 acres, which has been completed recently, are some of the leading large-scale drainage projects. ## NEW INTEREST IS SHOWN IN AGRICULTURE, LETTERS FROM STUDENTS INDICATE

Lafayette, Ind., Sept. 8.—That hundreds of young men in Indiana and several surrounding states are realizing the possibilities in farming and various agricultural pursuits is shown by the extra large number applying to Purdue University relative to the course in agriculture and work connected with it.

"We have never had such a demand for information about agricultural courses and the work the University offers as we have had this year," said Dean J. H. Skinner of the Purdue College of Agriculture. "While we can offer no figures I feel sure that this year's freshman class will be much larger than normal and the upper classmen will be back to their usual numbers. We are expecting the return of many who entered military service before completing their courses."

Hundreds of farmers scattered over the state have taken courses at Purdue and returned directly to their farms, while several hundred more are filling positions as county agricultural agents, teachers of agriculture and other commercial positions in Indiana or other states.

"Only a day or two ago I had a letter from a farmer who is 33 years old. He said that he desired to take agriculture here when he finished high school, but was unable to do so and intended to enter college this fall so as to learn more about farming than he had been able to acquire in ten years of actual practice."

The letter of this young farmer is typical of scores being received from throughout the state. The high standard of farm and the new position it has attained in the last few years, together with the high price of land and the realization that farming is a big business proposition, has served to arouse many persons who were never before interested in agriculture, Dean Skinner says.

VIGO FARMER APPLIES LIMESTONE; GETS GOOD CLOVER CROP OFF SAND

John Klug of Honey Creek township, Vigo county finished a lime and clover demonstration under the direction of County Agent H. J. Clinebell this summer that proved to Mr. Klug that an application of ground limestone is the first important step in the redeeming of worn out soil upon which clover can not be grown successfully. This demonstration was started in the fall of 1917.

The ground limestone was applied to the wheat ground soon after it was plowed. Two tons were used per acre on this demonstration. The wheat was seeded without commercial fertilizer. The clover seed was sown in the wheat the spring of 1918 with a disc grass seeder. There was a good stand of clover on all parts of the field during the spring of 1918, but the extremely dry weather of July and August killed all the young clover on the unlimed portion of the field while that upon the limed portion withstood the drought well.

This summer Mr. Klug cut and put up three and one fourth tons of cured hay per acre from that portion of the field that had been limed. On the unlimed portion of the field he had nothing but weeds. The cost per acre of the application of limestone was $3.44 not counting the cost of the labor for applying. At the time Mr. Klug made this hay he could have marketed it for $18 to $20 per ton. After all expenses of harvesting the crop were deducted and the cost of the entire application of limestone was subtracted he had a nice profit.

Another unusual feature of this demonstration was the success with which clover was grown on a high sand ridge where it had not been grown for years. This was accomplished by the application of limestone and a light top-dressing of manure on the wheat during the winter. More farmers all over Vigo county are using ground limestone this fall than ever before. This is spelling greater prosperity for those who have recognized the importance of ground limestone in permanent agriculture.

ROUND WORMS RESPONSIBLE FOR MUCH TROUBLE IN PIGS

One of the frequent causes of trouble in young pigs at this time of the year is the common round worm which is found in the intestines of the young animal at weaning time. Unthrifty appearance and abnormal hunger are the general symptoms of the disease, while in severe cases, the hair becomes rough and the pig takes on a stunted appearance.

According to J. W. Schwab, of the Division of Animal Husbandry of the Purdue Extension Department, the worms may be prevented by changing the location of the hog lots from time to time and keeping the pigs and the sow in clean, well-drained lots and pastures. Feeding them on a concrete floor that is cleaned frequently and providing them with fresh water are sanitary means of controlling the worms that should not be overlooked.

One of the cures recommended by Mr. Schwab is a teaspoonful of turpentine for each 80 pounds of live weight, given in milk for three days in succession after dieting the pigs for 12 to 15 hours. Another common remedy is a mixture of santonin and calomel. Animals weighing 40 to 75 pounds should receive five grains of santonin and eight grains of calomel per hundred pounds of live weight. Pigs weighing 75 pounds or more should receive three grains of santonin and five grains of calomel per hundred pounds of live weight. The animals should be dieted about 12 to 15 hours before the dose is administered. Each pig will get his share if about ten are fed at a time. The feed should be placed in a trough, dampened with turpentine and milk or if the santonin and calomel are used, the powders should be sprinkled over the feed and mixed with it thoroughly. This remedy may also be given by throwing the capsules well back into the mouth.

WOMAN FINDS CULLING BROUGHT BIG RETURNS

Last year on the farm of Mrs. Roy Pea in Knox county 40 hens in a flock of 105, were discarded as culls when she arranged for a culling demonstration on her farm. This year another demonstration was held there by County Agent W. J. Piggott, Jr., and only 18 culls could be found in a flock of 80. These were removed and Mrs. Pea will cull the flock herself again next year so as to retain only the best producers. She said that better feeding methods which she had followed since the demonstration a year ago had meant a great deal to her in the number of eggs produced the past year and also was responsible for the fewer number of culls this time. Mrs. Pea feeds a protein feed to balance the grain rations given the chickens.

CAMPAIGN AROUSES NEW INTEREST IN LIMESTONE

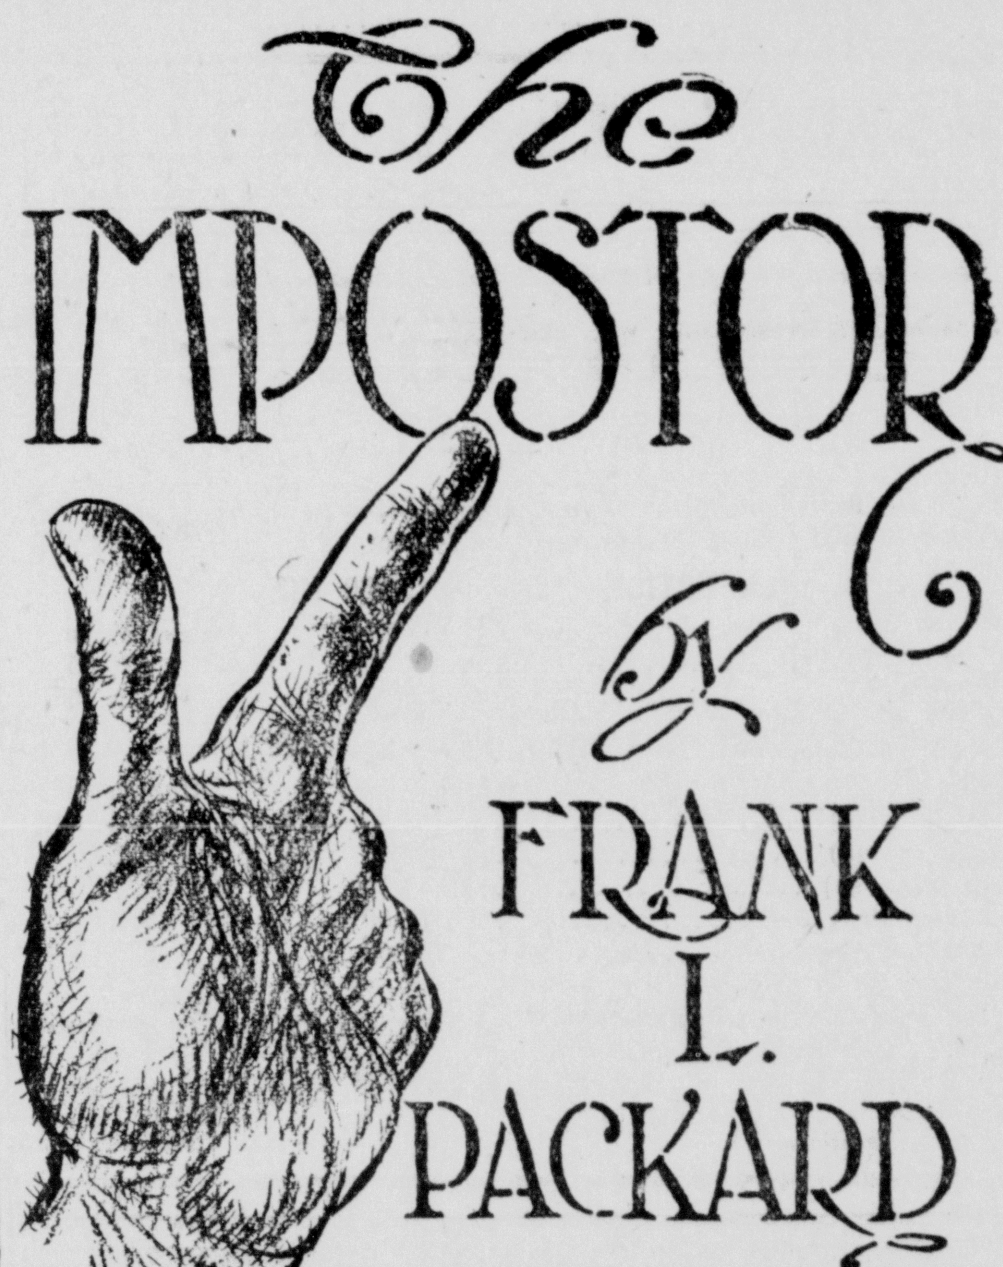

Farmers of Ripley county are showing a new interest in the results to be obtained from liming the soil as a result of stereopticon lectures and round table discussion which County Agricultural Agent Calvin Griffith is conducting in connection with a limestone campaign.

Five carloads of lime have been purchased in Washington township alone as a result of the campaign. Eleven samples of limestone in the county have been tested and found to have a neutralizing power of 98 to 100 per cent. This is material that the farmers have heretofore considered worthless as fertilizer.

CHAPTER I.

The Last Round.

An oily sea! Stillness—absolute stillness, save for the groan and creak of the yards and booms, as the bark rolled listlessly on the long, shimmering swells. Not a breath of air; only a stifling heat that beat upon the decks until the pitch in the seams bubbled.

Only a waste of water that reflected the merciless tropic glare of the sun and hurt the eyes cruelly.

Under an awning in the stern a man in cotton shirt and trousers, who was huddled in a chair by the cabin skylight, lifted his head and mumbled through cracked lips.

"Twenty grains of calomel, twenty-four quinine—magnesia, peppermint-water gone."

His hands fumbled with the drugs from the ship's medicine chest that strewed the skylight, and guessing at the quantities, carried portions to his mouth. He swallowed with difficulty, and relapsed into a huddled position.

After a little he raised his head once more, and began to count upon his fingers. One, two, three, four, five—was it five or eight days, or ten, or a month that the calm had lasted? He did not know. He had lost all track of time. But it worried him, and to his sick brain assumed very vital proportions. The ship's log would tell.

He reached for it and began to scan the entries. It was strange that trying to read brought red flashes and pain to his eyes.

The words came only to him in snatches.

"October 10. Still becalmed. Intense heat. Native boatswain took sick this morning."

"October —. Buried boatswain last night. Four more of crew down. We've got yellow fever aboard. God help us if we don't get a breeze!"

His eyes went on down the page in a haphazard, irresponsible way, skipping entries here and there unconsciously.

"Still becalmed. God have mercy on us! Native crew all down. Chinaman named Won Su, after making a murderous attack in his delirium on Wallen, the first mate, jumped overboard."

Yes, he remembered that. He was Wallen—Stacey Wallen—the first mate of the bark Upolo. It had been a horrible sight.

The poor devil had rushed at him screaming and—he shuddered a little—he did not want to think of that. What was this entry here?

"The heat is horrible. Survivors too weak to bury the dead. Captain Mitchell died at 2:10 a. m."

That was the last entry. There wasn't any date on it. He couldn't remember whether it had been yesterday or the day before. Well, what did it matter; and, anyway, it was time to make rounds.

Rounds!

What rounds were there to make? Everybody was dead. Johnson, the second mate, had died that morning, though he hadn't made the entry of Johnson's death in the log; what was the good? There wasn't any more use for a log. Everybody was dead except himself—the other two white men and the crew, who were all natives. And now he was down, too; he was only waiting for the fever to run its course.

That would take maybe a few hours more.

A voice within him seemed to keep whispering: "Rounds! You've got to make rounds, make rounds." For two days or nights, or whenever it was since Johnson had first taken sick, he had made rounds unceasingly with the medicines; that was why the medicines were on the skylight, so that he wouldn't have to go below.

But making rounds was over now; there was no one to make rounds for—there was only himself. "Rounds! Make rounds; it's time to make rounds!" the voice insisted.

He roused himself. Yes, that was so. Last time he had gone along the deck Ting Wah was still alive. The man would be dead now probably, and the medicines weren't any good, anyway; it was air, God's air, that was wanted. "Rounds! Make rounds!"

He staggered up from his chair, collected some drugs and, reeling to the ship's side where the rail would help support him, made his way painfully forward to where another awning was stretched over the fore-deck. He kept his eyes in front of him; there were shapes about the deck covered with anything that had first come to hand—shapes that should not have been there only at the last Johnson and he had been too weak to do anything but throw coverings over them. He didn't want to look at the shapes.

There was one form, only one, that was uncovered, and he knelt beside it. Ting Wah was still alive.

"Medicine," said Wallen hoarsely. The Chinaman pushed it away.

"No can take," he answered weakly. "Me finish."

"Wallen steadied himself with an effort, and looked at the other closely. It was near the end; but still, as under certain conditions it sometimes did, the disease had left the man's intelligence unimpaired.

"Look here, old chap," said Wallen cheerfully through his own cracked lips. "You never know. Buck up. Take the medicine." He stooped to lift the other's head gently, and nearly fell himself in doing it.

A sudden gleam of gratitude came into the Chinaman's eyes.

"You glood man," he whispered. "You all same glood man. But no can take—all same finish now." He pushed the medicine away again; and then plucked at Wallen's sleeve, evidently trying to get the mate's head down closer to his lips.

The man was going fast. Wallen tried to force a kindly smile.

"What is it?" he asked. "Listen!" said Ting Wah. "Mebbe you die too. Mebbe no. All same me tell—you glood man—last night bling medicine all night you glood man—me tell—"

His voice trailed off weakly.

"Yes?" prompted Wallen kindly.

The man tried to speak, tried again, but without avail.

Wallen's own head was reeling, premonitory of coming nausea.

"It's all right, Ting Wah, it's all right," he said soothingly. "Better not try to talk."

But now Ting Wah, with a desperate effort, raised himself to his elbow.

"Yes, me talk!" he gasped out. "But must talk quick. Me here, Won Su here, four more all same Chinamen come on board and make crew on ship here for all same knifed you."

There was contortion in the man's face, a pitiful struggle to fight back the weakness and exhaustion that was upon him. Wallen stared at him in a dazed way.

"Kill me, Ting Wah!" he cried out. "What for? You—you don't know what you're saying, do you? You don't mean that!"

The Chinaman's elbow was slipping gradually away from beneath him, his eyes were closed. The medicine spilled from Wallen's hands onto the deck, and he caught at the other, propping him up.

"Ting Wah! Ting Wah!" he cried again, shaking the man to rouse him. "What do you mean? Ting Wah, don't you hear me! What did you mean to kill me for?"

There was no answer. The man was—no, not yet! Ting Wah's lips were moving. Wallen bent his head still closer to catch the words.

"Drink-House Sam—Singapore—him know."

That was all. It was over now. Wallen straightened up unsteadily, and lurched to the rail where he could cling on to something.

Six Chinamen had shipped as part of the crew so that they could kill him. Why? He laughed in a sick fashion. What did it matter? They were all dead, those six—and every one else—and in a few hours he would be dead too. He laughed again, a little hysterically. This Drink-House Sam of Singapore, whoever he was, ought to be satisfied with that!

He clawed his way back to the after-deck, and dropped into his chair again. His brain seemed to go numb for a time, to be indifferent to everything—and then suddenly to become strangely active. Six Chinamen had shipped as members of the crew so that they could kill him. It wasn't a pleasant thought, even if the whole six were dead now, and that he himself would be dead, too, before long.

Oh, yes, he believed it now, right enough—why shouldn't he? What about that murderous attack Won Su had made upon him, and that he had thought was delirium! But that wasn't all, he had reason beside that to believe Ting Wah's story; reason enough. God knew! now that he came to think of the things that were crowding into his mind.

Out of the shimmering heat waves that rose along the deck and seemed to hover so weirdly over those covered shapes that ought not to have been there, another scene gradually took form, at first indistinctly, vaguely, then in sharp outline, startling, distinct.

It was a stone house, a gray stone house, all by itself, without neighbors, isolated, a silent place. Yes, he remembered it! It seemed to bring a chill upon him now—the cold, dreary, lifeless house had done its best to crush even a laugh out of his boyhood with its eternal, silent brooding mystery. That was why he had run away ten years ago, when he was fourteen.

All his earlier recollections were of that place. His mother wasn't there, he had never seen his mother. There were just his father, and that tall, swarthy Eastern servant, who frightened his boy's heart—just those two and himself. He never saw anyone else.

No one ever came to the house. No one was ever admitted. Gunga, the servant, fetched the supplies from the nearby village. His own education was superintended by his father. But there had never been any intimacy between his father and himself.

He had never questioned his father but once—after that he had never dared to do so. He remembered the deadly whiteness that had come over the morose, taciturn face, the grip of iron upon his shoulder, the hoarse passion in his father's voice.

"Never speak to me again of that," his father had said. "When you are older, when the time comes, you shall know."

Wallen rocked unsteadily in his chair. What a frightful stench the ship possessed—or was it only his imagination? What was it he had been thinking of? Oh, yes, the six Chinamen who had come to kill him, and the gray house where there were so many bars and locks, and where every night his father and Gunga turned the keys and the chains rattled on the doors as they fastened them.

He raised his hand and passed it across his eyes in a startled way. How vividly it came back to him, that night—as though it were just happening now, as though he were in the very act of living it again!

A crash in the dead of night through that silent house, and he had sat up, trembling, in bed. Then a cry, the report of a pistol shot, and the echoes of the shot rumbled and reverberated through the house, striking terror into his young heart. And he was crawling out of his bed, and out into the hall and down the stairs in his nightshirt.

And half-way down he stopped in horror.

Below, in the hallway, stood the giant form of his father holding a candle, and on the floor lay stretched a huddled form, and Gunga, with a revolver, was bending over the Thing that did not move. Then came his father's voice, in a strange, queer note of tense eagerness.

"Look again, Gunga. Has he one finger on the left hand?"

"I have looked, sahib, and the hand is whole."

Spellbound he had stood there on the stairs, a lad of fourteen, and Gunga had lifted the Thing in his arms and gone away with it; and the great figure of his father, dressed in pajamas, had stood motionless for a long time, then turning had faced the stairs and caught sight of him—and suddenly had sent a wild, unnatural laugh ringing through the house.

"You there, eh, Stacey?" he had laughed out, as though unmannered. "Well, I'll tell you something now. Never go to the East. Remember that—never go to the East."

And then he had pulled himself together, and his face had set sternly as he had pointed up the stairs. "Go back to your bed!" he had commanded sharply. "Go back to your bed instantly!"

"Yes," said Wallen aloud to himself. "That's what he said: 'Never go to the East—never go to the East.'"

But he had come to the East and six Chinamen had shipped aboard the Upolo to kill him. His father had been quite right in telling him not to go to the East. How was it that he had come there? He had run away from that gray house after that night, and he had never heard of his father since.

That was in California.

He had gone to Frisco, and gone to sea. He had been at sea ever since in all kinds of ships, and he had done pretty well. He had his master's certificate already.

But that did not account for his being here in the Java sea, and for those six Chinamen. He had been fourth officer of the Tokamaru when they had touched at Shanghai a few weeks ago. She was a fine ship, the Tokamaru, the biggest passenger liner in the fleet—only a fourth officer's pay was very small.

He had met Captain Mitchell of the Upolo ashore there, and Captain Mitchell had persuaded him to ship as first mate on the Upolo for double the pay he had been getting. The Upolo, of course, traded through the Java and Banda seas—that was what his father had meant by the East—touching at Shanghai as a port of call in a liner wasn't the same thing.

How that sun burned through the awning! It seemed to stab and drill into his skull with little shafts of exquisite pain. He could get away from it, of course, by going below into the cabin, by putting the deck between him and that torturing ball of fire, but in the cabin one couldn't breathe.

One couldn't live in the cabin—Captain Mitchell was there and Captain Mitchell was dead.

Had Captain Mitchell anything to do with those six Chinamen? Or anything to do with Drink-House Sam in Singapore? And where was it those six Chinamen had joined—at Shanghai like himself?

If he could remember that he would know whether Captain Mitchell had had a hand in the cursed game. Hadn't Johnson said something about new hands? But then native crews were everlastingly shifting about. It was a long way from Singapore to Shanghai.

Who was this Drink-House Sam? What was it Ting Wah had said? "Drink-House Sam—him know,"

Where Can I Find Relief From Itching, Terrifying Eczema?

Question on Lips of Afflicted.

There is a harrassing discomfort caused by Eczema that almost becomes a torture. The itching is almost unbearable, and the skin seems on fire with the burning irritation. A cure from local applications of salves and ointments is impossible, because such treatment can only allay the pain temporarily. The disease can only be reached by going deep down to its source, which is in the blood, the disease being caused by an infection which breaks out through the skin. That is why the most satisfactory treatment for all so-called skin diseases is S. S. S., which acts by cleansing the blood. Get a bottle to-day, and you will see results from the right treatment. ### CITY MAY ADVANCE TO FOURTH CLASS may be asked to give an opinion as to the meaning of the law.

Seymour has remained in the fifth class group from the time that the classification law was enacted in 1905. Under that law the classification was based entirely on population, all cities having less than 10,000 inhabitants being placed in the last or fifth group. The legislature of 1913, however, amended the original law as it affected fifth class cities and made it possible for cities having a population of less than 10,000 to enter the fourth class if the property valuation of such cities exceeded $7,500,000.

The reads: "That all cities in this state having a population of less than ten thousand, as shown by the last preceding United States census, and also having an assessed valuation of not less than seven and one-half millions of taxable as shown by the last preceding assessment for taxation, shall be and are hereby denominated as cities of the fourth class, and shall be governed by the laws of the State of Indiana, regulating the government of fourth class cities."

This section is interpreted by some attorneys to mean that the voters have no choice in the matter; but that as soon as the qualifications are reached the city automatically goes into the higher group. The government of fourth class cities, it is pointed out, costs more than that of fifth class cities. Slight increases of salary for some of the administrative officials are provided. However, another question arises as to whether or not the present officials would be entitled to the increases as their salaries have been fixed for the term of office for which they were elected.

G. H. Anderson's Bulletin.

On September 12 I received a car load of Aviston flour out of hard wheat and guarantee every pound of it to be as good flour and as is on the market. Also have a full line of feed, hominy feed, cracked corn, feed meal, Schumacker hog feed, dairy feed and a full line of all kinds of feed. Owing to the break in corn, these feeds are getting down in price. You will find me in line with the market at all times on feed and grain. I am in the market at all times for wheat, corn, rye and oats at the market price.

BROWNSTOWN WOMAN IS SENTENCED TO PRISON

Mrs. Dessie White Taken To Institution Saturday—Creates Scene In Court Room.

Judge John W. Donaker, of the circuit court this morning sentenced Mrs. Dessie White, of Brownstown, to sixty days in the correctional department of the Woman's Prison in Indianapolis on her plea of guilty to a statutory charge in that court a few days ago.

When sentence was pronounced on her the woman created a pathetic scene in the court room by bursting into a violent fit of weeping and wailing, which she continued for more than an hour, a physician being called for her in the meantime. The woman's husband was present and did all he could to quiet and pacify his wife, but without avail, as she continued to weep violently while lying in his arms, nor did it seem to quiet her when her husband told her there was no use in taking on so over nothing. The husband told Sheriff Essex that his wife had been ill several days and asked that a physician be called and the sheriff called Dr. E. U. Wood. The woman was taken to the prison today by John Hoagland, janitor of the court house, Mrs. Hoagland and Mrs. Pete Lambert.

Orville Winegar, of Brownstown, who was convicted of a statutory charge in which Mrs. White was connected, was fined $50 and costs and sentenced to sixty days on the state penal farm, was taken to the farm by Sheriff Essex yesterday. Winegar is a married man and at his trial his wife testified in his behalf, when she said she desired to continue to live with her husband. Despite his wife's plea of guilty, White is very attentive to her and seemed much put out today, when she was sentenced to prison.—Columbus Republican.

THEDA BARA
Super-Picture:

It was photographed in California. It represents the co-ordinated playing of 30,000 people. It took months to make it and represents the expenditure of huge sums for the erection of Egyptian and Roman cities. It portrays the world's first naval battle—The Battle of Actium. Miss Bara wears fifty distinctively different costumes. Before and during the production ten seamstresses were constantly working on her costumes. To match each costume the Siren of the Nile wears a complete set of jewels—fifty dazzling sets of Bangles.

3000 horses were used in the battle and desert scenes. 100,000 lunches were consumed by the armies of Rome and Egypt.
